5 AI Prompts for Navigating Big Emotions

- ✓ Works with ChatGPT or Claude
- ✓ Prioritizes Safety & Connection
- ✓ Designed for 2e/Neurodivergent Brains

HOW TO USE: When a meltdown hits (or after the storm), open this guide. Copy the text in the grey box, paste it into an AI like ChatGPT, fill in the brackets [Like This], and hit enter.

1. Mid-Meltdown Script (Crisis Mode)

COPY/PASTE INTO CHATGPT:

My [Age]-year-old is in the middle of a meltdown about [Trigger]. They are [Current Behavior - e.g., yelling, hitting, hiding]. I have already tried [What you tried].

Give me a step-by-step script for the next 5 minutes that prioritizes safety and connection over correction. Include exact words I can say to co-regulate, and tell me exactly when to stay silent.

2. After the Storm (Reconnection)

COPY/PASTE INTO CHATGPT:

The meltdown is over and my child is calm but feeling shameful/fragile. I want to reconnect without lecturing.

Give me a 'Reconnection Script'. I need 3 opening lines I can say that validate their feelings ('It was hard') and separate them from the behavior ('You are a good kid having a hard time'). Avoid the word 'but'.

3. The Trigger Detective

COPY/PASTE INTO CHATGPT:

My child keeps having meltdowns at [Time of Day/Activity]. Act as a Behavioral Detective.

Ask me 5 specific questions to help me identify the hidden sensory or executive function triggers (e.g., hunger, noise, transition fatigue) that might be causing this pattern. Then, suggest one experiment to try tomorrow to prevent it.

4. The Calm-Down Plan

COPY/PASTE INTO CHATGPT:

Help me create a 'Dopamine Menu' or 'Calm-Down Plan' for my [Age]-year-old 2e child.

List 5 sensory-friendly activities (like heavy work, deep pressure, or specific music) that we can use to regulate their nervous system BEFORE a meltdown hits. Keep them simple and free.

5. Sibling Support Script

COPY/PASTE INTO CHATGPT:

My other child [Age] is confused/scared by their sibling's meltdowns. Give me a script to explain neurodiversity to them.

Use a simple metaphor (like a 'Fast Car Engine' or 'Volume Dial') to explain why their sibling explodes, and reassure them that everyone is safe and loved.
